Food Safety & Quality

with Science & Technology

The Food Safety Consortium (FSC) is a charitable organization set out with the aim to foster closer engagement and collaborations among the industry, academia, and government to address unmet food safety needs through innovation.

Our Objectives

- To create a stakeholder network in food safety and quality and to provide support to the global community with advanced technology and science
- To enhance capability and competence on food safety and quality and their related technology developments through university, industry, and government collaborations

We Translate Your Ideas

into Real Collaborations

The FSC is steered by prominent members of the industry, academia and professional organizations to optimize its capability of advancing food safety with science and technology. Sub-committees encompassing various sectors will each be chaired by members of the Management Committee with the corresponding expertise.

Share your thoughts with us through our regular networking gatherings, industry technology needs assessment workshops, seminars and match-making meetings.
